The Treasure

Last Friday, I went treasure hunting with my friend Will in Cheung Chau. We sailed there by a pirate ship. We were excited. "We will be rich!" we shouted.

When we arrived at Cheung Chau, we argued.

I said, "Let's go straight."

"That's not what the map says," Will said.

I thought I was right, but Will thought he was right too. We were angry with each other.

Then we had a fight and I dropped the map into the ocean. When we were fighting, our pirate ship crashed into the cliff next to it.

"Oh no!" we cried.

"Now we can't be rich!" said Will.

"Why?" I asked.

"You don't have the map anymore, so you can't find the treasure,"

Will answered.

We were sad, but we were lucky. We managed to find the treasure without the map.

" Now we've found the treasure, but how are we going to get home?" asked Will. I looked around and said,

"Look! There are some woods. Let's use them to make a boat, then we can go home."

The boat was finally ready. We went back in the boat and I became a very good friend with Will after that.
