Sunny

We had the English Week two weeks ago. It was held at the Language Centre during recesses and lunch breaks.

To prepare for the English Week, my classmates and I put out the chairs. We also prepared some souvenirs. Next, we needed to find some pictures and marked the differences between them.

On the English week, we played games. We played with the guests and looked at the pictures to find the differences. A guest spotted the differences quickly.

"These two elephants look different! One's nose is up, and the other one's down," shouted the guest.

"There's more!" shouted another guest.

The guest were so excited when they were playing at our booth, and the place was filled with joy and liveliness. We also gave out snacks to the guests who got the correct answers. Meanwhile, students who played the game got EDX cards too.

Time passed by quickly, this English week was about to end. We all thought it was a very interesting event. We begged our teachers to hold another English Week this year and they reluctantly agreed. I am really looking forward to the next English Week!
